School News

When sixth grade students studied September 11th this year, they had an unforgettable opportunity to skype with someone who experienced the day first hand. This past summer Mrs. Roush was able to take a week long trip out to New York to study about 9/11 and American memory through the Gilder Lehrman Institute. While there, Thomas E. Franklin came and spoke about his experience as a photojournalist on that day. He was the photographer who took the iconic 9/11 photo.

Mrs. Roush was able to contact Mr. Franklin and he offered to have a skype session with the sixth grade class. The sixth graders were able to ask questions to Mr. Franklin about the day as he experienced it and what it was like to be there on 9/11. He answered questions for over 45 minutes for the students and made the tragic day of 9/11 seem more real for them.

The Basics: Memory Loss, Dementia & Alzheimer's Disease Program

If you or someone you know is affected by Alzheimer's or dementia, it's time to learn the facts. Learn detection, causes, risk factors, stages of the disease, treatment, and much more.
